Cuban Bread

History

La Segunda Central Bakery has a long family history, rich in tradition, which began with Juan More' in the late 19th century. Born in the Catalan region of Spain, More' fought in the Spanish-American War in Cuba. Armed with a dream and a recipe for Cuban Bread, developed during the war, More' decided to set off for Florida instead of returning to Spain. More' and Comellas, a fellow Catalan, bought a bakery, "La Primera de Ybor", from the original owner, Jose Alonso; subsequently, More' became a partner in almost every Cuban Bread Bakery in the area.

One of the most significant attributes of the bread is a fresh leaf of palmetto, cut daily in the area used to create the signature split down the top of each loaf. Authentic Cuban Bread will always contain the palm leaf, which is only used in Ybor City. A fresh strip of leaf is placed prior to the proofing stage on a sticky piece of dough holding moisture on the top of the bread. Before being placed into the oven, the dough is then moved in front of fans to harden the exterior which gives the bread the crunchy crust, and soft interior our customers have come to love.
